DESTINY

by Ana María Cano Guerrero NB1-D

‘I can’t find my ticket, where is it?’ María asked her secretary. The secretary said nothing. ‘It’s impossible to buy another one. I can’t go to the concert’ – said María.

The concert started at 10 o’clock on Saturday night. One hour later all the city heard an explosion. It happened there, at the concert hall.

María never saw her secretary again.

THAT WOMAN

by María Luisa Bermúdez Naveda - NI C

And there she was again. The person who rescued me from fire, who saved me from drowning when I was a child.

Now it was a picture in my great-aunt's album.

'Who's she?', I asked anxiously.

'She was my mother. She died the same day you were born, excited about your birth'.

Do you believe in guardian angels?

I do.

NIVEL AVANZADO/CI

LOOKING FORWARD TO STARTING SCHOOL

by José Esteban Núñez García - NA1 A

It was my first day at the language school. I was driving happily towards there when I ran over him.

I was frightened so I drove away like a bat out of hell.

When I arrived in class, everyone was speaking about the teacher who had been knocked down by a car.

I ended up doing an online English course...
